Right To Electric Service

If you have a financial hardship you (or anyone presently and normally living in your home) have a Right to Electric Service in the following situations:

Bill Details:

Account information highlighted in red: Account Number, Customer Name Key

Supply information highlighted in blue: Supplier, Supply Rate, Historical Usage

1. The Account Balance section now shows charges split between “National Grid Services”, which is the delivery services charge and “Other Supplier Services”, which is the electricity supply charge.

For participants, the program supplier replaces National Grid. With any supplier other than National Grid, supply charges will appear in a separate column, labeled above, “Other Supplier Services”. This is not an additional charge, rather the total bill broken out into two columns.

2. Residents may notice higher than usual bill totals in the Summer months. Due to extreme temperatures this Summer, air conditioning use increases the total usage dramatically. Even though the program supply rate is lower than National Grid’s current rate, higher usage increases both supply and delivery costs. To calculate supply cost changes, our program site calculator tool compares supply costs of each program supply product against National Grid’s Basic service cost.

To see usage trends, residents can look at the “Electric Usage History” section on their bill for a review of the last 12 months of usage.
